WILKIE COLLINS M RDER TALE FROM EIGHTH AVENUE.

Death Was to Steal on Mrs. Hall Through a Partition, but It Didn't and the Boarder She Had Scorned Tried an he police a real Wilkie Collins story.

Miss Hall said that Hahl had lived in her flat for some time and that he had attempted to make love to her. She had attempted to make love to her. She had attempted to make love to her. She had been a stake event beyond a doubt, yet reports from Lexington are to the effect that after trying Onward Silver, Geers sent him home.

story of his lawyer, Col. T. C. Campbell, that Newton's brokers were affected by threats made by some of the banks which had wind of the scheme after $5,500,000 of the bonds had been bought for him, that they sold back to the banks the bonds which had been bought at some loss, and that Newton's capital was wiped out by their treachery. At any rate, he lost his $90,000. Soon after that he was charged with the embezzlement of $1,100 from a customer. The case was not pressed.

A policeman heard Newton talking somewhat incoherently about his purchase of

"UNFAIR," SAYS FOODY'S COUNSEL

If Ills Policemen Didn't Look Like Policemen lie Could Enforce the Law. Ex-District Attorney Olcott counsel for olice Capt. Foody, who has been on trial for failure to enforce the Excise laws in his precinct, filed a brief for his client with nissioner Partridge yesterday.

"No fair inference against Foody's men is to be drawn from the evidence collected by Mr. Jerome's 'County Detectives,' "argues counsel. "They were wholly unknown in the precinct and were, by that, armed with e strest weapon for inducing the com-scion of excise violations. Nay more, recion of excise violations. Nay more, ch pair of detectives which he sent out all as at least one of its members, a man by no possibility could have been a commit and that disarmed suspicion and the the saloon keepers confident that a visitors were not of or from the police has violations could safely be committed by the committ
